

Grand Pacific Voyage: A World Of Islands

The Pacific Ocean is earth's largest feature, larger than all the dry surface of the planet combined. It occupies a third of the globe, and at its widest point stretches halfway around the world. It plunges to a depth of nearly 36,000 feet, obscuring the planet's deepest scars. And its glossy, ever-moving surface is embellished with most of the world's islands – 25,000 of them.

We invite you to join us as we embark the intimate, ultra-luxury Seabourn Odyssey resort at sea in your choice of Seattle or Vancouver to follow a path of islands across the immense blue arc of the Pacific – sailing from one intriguing, enticing landfall to another – discovering, learning, and sharing the excitement in a relaxed but stimulating atmosphere of gracious elegance and ease.
